SLTA (Swiss LegalTech Association) has announced the foundation of the Chapter NextGen with the aim to promote and cooperate with student associations that wish to get involved in legal technology.

According to SLTA "the discussion about the evolution of the legal services market should begin as early as possible, therefore during university studies. This is a good way for law students to prepare for the future and understand the legal market and how to position themselves after graduation".

The student association can reach out SLTA getting accreditation in Chapter NextGen and a free corporate membership within the SLTA. At the same time, SLTA will share its know-how and contribute to their success in promoting the modernizing of the legal market, included the sharing of the insights and information regarding trends and technologies.
