Swiss FinTec startup Teylor has closed its CHF 8 million Series A financing round. CEO Patrick Stäuble, who founded Teylor in 2018, explained that the Series A round will enable Teylor AG to expand its lending and software business throughout Europe and to solidify its position as one of the leading technology providers in the SME banking segment.

The Series A financing round includes investments from various existing and new investors, among others the Munich based VC WENVEST Capital and technology service provider Steinbeis, well-known private investors, such as Patrick Zbinden, Global Co-Head and CEO Switzerland at EFGAM, as well as other angel investors, family offices, and institutional investors from Switzerland, Germany, and Israel.

The team

Walder Wyss advised Teylor on all legal aspects of the Series A financing round. The team was led by managing associate Boris Räber (corporate/m&a - pictured) and further included senior associate Claudia Weber (corporate/m&a) and junior lawyer Judith Rothen (corporate/m&a).
